Dependable

— Being someone people can count on.

Example: Sensei Erik chose Shamika to lead the class, because he knew she was dependable. She always finished what she was asked to do in class quickly and correctly.

Everyone has opportunities every day to show others how dependable they are. When you are dependable, people don't have to ask if you have done something. If you have the reputation for being dependable, they know you did your work without being asked. Circle the statements that describe you in red, and the ones you need to work on in blue.

- I keep my promises.
- I do what I say I will do.
- I arrive on time.
- I do not need a reminder to get a job done
- I can be counted on to have the materials needed to get jobs done.
- I can work with others to see that things get done.
- I finish what I start.
- I am viewed as a person who keeps my word.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY TIPS

Halloween can be fun, but it can also be dangerous. Here are just a few safety rules to remember when you are trick-or-treating this year.

- Walk, don't run.
- Carry a flashlight, and wear a light-colored costume or have reflective tape on it.
- Wear comfortable shoes that fit.
- Make sure your costume doesn't drag on the ground or you might trip.
- If you wear a mask, make certain you can see out of it or wear makeup instead.
- Stay away from animals. They are excited and so are you.
- Stay away from slow or parked cars, especially if someone calls you to come over.
- Always go with an adult.
- Wait until an adult checks your candy before you eat any of it.
- Never go inside anyone's home unless your parent is with you.

Circle all of the words that are hidden in the grid. They can be forward, backward, up, down, or diagonal. Then, use a different color ink to circle the remaining letters as they spell an activity played on Halloween!

Word to Remember

Word to remember: Jack-o'-lantern

Example: Every year, my family picks a pumpkin to carve into a jack-o-lantern. My Irish grandmother told us that her family carved turnips when she was young!
